> "Behind every behaviour is a person worth understanding; lasting change begins there."

Morgan is a warm and curious Behaviour Support Practitioner with a background in child protection, youth work, mental health and disability, particularly within Supported Independent Living. She has extensive experience working alongside children, adolescents, and families experiencing complex circumstances, including trauma, emotional and behavioural dysregulation, disrupted relationships, and significant life stressors.

Morgan is passionate about looking beyond behaviour to understand what a person may be communicating, experiencing or needing. Her approach is trauma-informed, strengths-based and collaborative, with particular interests in emotional regulation, attachment, coping and social problem-solving. Morgan values genuine connection and works alongside individuals, families and support teams to develop practical strategies that build skills, autonomy, and quality of life.

Outside of her support role, Morgan has an energetic young son and is a strong believer in the role of movement in wellbeing and regulation. She loves martial arts and resistance training, being near the ocean, and live music.
