> "Helping people experience greater choice, independence and quality of life."

Susan is a Positive Behaviour Support Practitioner with a background in social work, dedicated to helping people experience greater choice, independence and quality of life. Drawing on her social work experience, she takes a holistic approach that is person-centred, strengths-based and grounded in genuine collaboration, working alongside individuals, families, carers and support teams to understand each person's needs, strengths and circumstances and create practical strategies that are respectful, achievable and meaningful.

Susan also offers a safe and reflective space for practitioners seeking professional supervision, with a focus on building confidence, strengthening ethical practice and supporting ongoing professional growth.

In her spare time, Susan enjoys exploring the outdoors and unwinding by the fire — a balance that helps her feel refreshed and connected to the things that matter most.
